

THE NATIONAL POETRY SERIES

Established in 1978, The National Poetry Series is a literary awards program which sponsors the publication of five books of poetry each year with the goal of supporting poetry and increasing the audience for poetry by heightening its visibility. The manuscripts, solicited through an annual Open Competition, are selected by poets of national stature and published by a distinguished group of trade, university, and small presses, including the University of Georgia Press. Former winners of the National Poetry Series competition include poets such as Sterling Brown, Billy Collins, Mark Doty, Stephen Dunn, Marie Howe, Naomi Shihab Nye, Eleni Sikelianos, and Terrance Hayes.

What Ridiculous Things We Could Ask of Each Other
Jeffrey Schultz

PAPER, $16.95T | 4721-9

“Jeffrey Schultz’s stunning debut collection is filled with danger, omen, and fire—as appropriate to a book with an ode ‘To the Unexploded H-Bomb Lost in Tidal Mud off the Coast of Savannah, Georgia.’ The poems include ‘J,’ a character who carves a path between John Berryman’s Huffy Henry and Ernesto Trejo’s E.—a soul set loose, unmoored even, who says ‘The World’s

Not as It Should Be’ but also revels in modern life and its detritus, whether that’s ‘the soul as rooms for rent,’ the last pay phone, or ‘your blog.’ Schultz’s brilliant poetic debut embraces the world while lamenting it, singing of not just What Ridiculous Things We Could Ask of Each Other but answering in form and music, a haunting hymn in the round.” —Kevin Young, author of Book of Hours
