

university of georgia press
natur^ecatalog

- about this catalog
 - ecocriticism
- environmental history
 - field guides
- nature writing & trade nonfiction
 - philosophy & ethics

about this catalog

UGA Press has a long tradition of publishing books about nature and the environment. A rich variety of work has been published over the years, ranging from books of philosophy that are internationally focused to field guides of the Southeast to narrative writing that is both personal and universal.

This paperless catalog features almost 150 titles divided into five major subject areas: ecocriticism, environmental history, field guides, nature writing & trade nonfiction, and philosophy & ethics. PDFs are available of the entire catalog and of each section separately. Each section has a separate author index. An order form is also included.

If you have questions contact

John McLeod
jmcleod@ugapress.uga.edu
706-369-6158

university of georgia press
naturecatalog

- Davis, Donald Edward · Where There Are Mountains 13
- Davis, Jack E. · An Everglades Providence 12
- Gennett, Andrew · Sound Wormy 13
- Hayler, Nicole, ed. · Sound Wormy 13
- Kirby, Jack Temple, ed. · Nature's Management 14
- Nelson, Lynn A. · Pharsalia 12
- Nelson, Megan Kate · Trembling Earth 13
- Ruffin, Edmund · Nature's Management 14
- Saikku, Mikko · This Delta, This Land 13
- Shores, Elizabeth Findley · On Harper's Trail 14
- Stewart, Mart A. · "What Nature Suffers to Groe" 14
- Sutter, Paul, series ed. · Environmental History and the American South series 12

ENVIRONMENTAL HISTORY and the AMERICAN SOUTH

Paul Sutter, Series Editor

Series Advisory Board: Judith Carney, University of California, Los Angeles; Robbie Ethridge, University of Mississippi; Ari Kelman, University of California, Davis; Jack Temple Kirby, Emeritus, Miami University of Ohio; Shepard Krech III, Brown University; Tim Silver, Appalachian State University; Mart A. Stewart, Western Washington University

The field of environmental history has exploded during the last two decades, but the American South has largely been bypassed by this boom. This series seeks to correct that neglect by exploring the critical importance of human-environmental interactions to the history and culture of the region. We aim to show how attention to environmental topics necessarily enriches our understanding of southern history and identity, and how a focus on southern topics promises to reshape the broader field of environmental history. The series not only situates environmental history within the American South, broadly defined, but also connects the region to local, national, and transnational scales of analysis.

new

An Everglades Providence available February 2009

Marjory Stoneman Douglas and the American Environmental Century
Jack E. Davis

"I congratulate Jack Davis for his exceptional book on the life of Marjory Stoneman Douglas. More than just a biography, the book provides an excellent history of the modern environmental movement. I am certain that all who read it will be not only inspired by the dynamic, pivotal, and courageous life and work of Marjory Stoneman Douglas but also reminded of how terribly essential her efforts to protect the Florida Everglades and the environment remain."—Senator Bob Graham 616 pp.

Cloth, $34.95t | 3071-6

Pharsalia

An Environmental Biography of a Southern Plantation, 1780–1880
Lynn A. Nelson
Foreword by Paul S. Sutter

"Nelson has given us a wonderful case study of southern agricultural practices during the nineteenth century. His 'biography' of Pharsalia, a plantation in upland Virginia, is in every sense a life story not only of planters and slaves but also of the crops, weeds, livestock, and other organisms that inhabited the land for nearly a hundred years. Exhaustively researched and quietly provocative, this important book should find a wide audience among scholars interested in the South, the environment, agriculture, or antebellum slavery."—Timothy Silver, author of A New Face on the Countryside

328 pp. | 12 photos | 4 maps
Cloth, $39.95s | 2627-6

Where There Are Mountains

An Environmental History of the Southern Appalachians

Donald Edward Davis

Winner of 2001 Phillip D. Reed Memorial Award for Outstanding Writing on the Southern Environment

Begins with a description of the indigenous Mississippian culture in 1500 and ends with the destructive effects of industrial logging and dam building during the first three decades of the twentieth century.

"Offers a fresh perspective on the ways we can understand economic, cultural, and environmental change."—Environmental History

352 pp. | 24 b&w photos | 1 map
Paper, $19.95s | 2494-4

Trembling Earth

A Cultural History of the Okefenokee Swamp

Megan Kate Nelson

"A fascinating, valuable addition to the (suddenly) burgeoning literature encompassing the American Southeast's environment. Nelson's work, excellent in itself, represents a flowering in the regional field, I think, that will soon rival the larger and older tradition of western environmental history."—Jack Temple Kirby, author of Poquosin

280 pp. | 6 photos | 1 map
Cloth, $34.95t | 2677-1

This Delta, This Land

An Environmental History of the Yazoo-Mississippi Floodplain

Mikko Saikku

In the first comprehensive environmental history of the Yazoo-Mississippi Delta, Saikku places the region's economic and cultural history in an environmental context.

"Faulknerian in scale—rich in sense of place, broad in implications."
—Donald Worster, University of Kansas

400 pp. | 6 photos | 3 maps
Paper, $22.95s | 2673-3
Unjacketed cloth, $54.95y | 2534-7

Sound Wormy

Memoir of Andrew Gennett, Lumberman

Andrew Gennett

Edited by Nicole Hayler

Foreword and afterword by John Alger

"In addition to capturing the economic, social, and political turmoil of the time, Gennett's memoir also documents his own personal struggle with his involvement in the timber industry and his interest in protecting the forests through conservation."

—Virginia Quarterly Review

256 pp. | 28 photos
Paper, $24.95s | 2941-3

new in paper

Nature's Management

Writings on Landscape and Reform, 1822–1859

Edmund Ruffin

Edited by Jack Temple Kirby

History remembers Edmund Ruffin, the Virginia native believed to have fired the first shot against Fort Sumter, as one of the South's most aggressive "fire-eaters." This volume of Ruffin's work offers us his less known but equally intense passion for agricultural study.

"A valuable contribution to the history of Ruffin, the American landscape, and the environment." —Journal of Southern History

408 pp. | 1 photo
Paper, $26.95s | 2837-9

new

On Harper's Trail

Roland McMillan Harper, Pioneering Botanist of the Southern Coastal Plain

Elizabeth Findley Shores

"Although often overlooked, Roland Harper was a significant botanist, and this biography brings him the attention he deserves. In this thoroughly researched study, Shores makes an important contribution, illuminating much about botany in the Southeast, ecology, eugenics, and the history of Georgia, Alabama, and Florida. This book should appeal to botanists, historians of science, and many general readers." —Lester D. Stephens, Professor Emeritus of History, University of Georgia

296 pp. | 12 b&w photos | 1 map | 3 cartoons
Cloth, $42.95s | 3100-3

"What Nature Suffers to Groe"

Life, Labor, and Landscape on the Georgia Coast, 1680–1920

Mart A. Stewart

Winner of the 1998 Malcolm Bell, Jr., and Muriel Barrow Bell Award

Stewart shows how each successive community on the Georgia coast—including its natives, settlers, slaves, sharecroppers, lumbermen, and developers—forged unique relationships with the environment, which in turn created unique landscapes.

"Establishes Stewart's credentials as a leading authority on the history of the southern low-country and a leading practitioner of the craft of environmental history."

—Florida Historical Quarterly

392 pp. | 42 photos | 2 maps
Paper, $22.95s | 2459-3
Wormsloe Foundation Publications

